Author of Railroad Plumb Scheme Bays Public Should Got Setter and Chasper Service Under the New Deal.

Washington.-A Plumb plan for all American industry, modeled after the plan of the same name for the rail-roads, has been prepared and soon is expected to be announced publicly. Copies of the plan, captioned "An Industrial Program by Glenn E. Plumb," are being circulated in Washington, and some have been received

Briefly the plan proposes for all American industry the system of tripartite railroad control, advanced some time ago with the backing of the great brotherhoods, and which it has been announced would be made an issue at the elections. It proposes virtually the same division of representation for capital, labor and the public. Industry is classed into four divisions in this way:

1. Those individualistic in ownership and operation, including the farmer and the small artisan, contractor and manufacturer who is both capitalistic, laborer and consumer.

2. All industries formerly individualistic, but which through organization have so developed that ownership is separated from labor and concerns itself only in direction and supervision of production in which it engages the efforts of others who have no share in

3. Industries based upon a grant from society in the shape of franchise, grantor privilege or monopoly.

In this division are included all public service corporations except those engaged in interstate commerce and industries engaged in exploiting natural resources. These latter are described as including mines, gas and water power.

4. Ratiroads and commercial transportation facilities. The plan explains that these are considered separately from the public service, facilities embraced in the third division because the former are under local control created by local authorities and subject to local regulation

Already overshadowing the fight for the national convention, which appar ently narrowed during the day to Kansas City and San Francisco, discus sion of the treaty got an additional impetus when it became known that at its meeting the committee would be asked by its officers formally to put itself squarely behind President Wilson in his stand in the treaty controversy.

A resolution making such a declaration was prepared for presentation, and Chairman Cummings of the committee predicted that it would be adopted. It is understood to indorse in general terms the President's course without declaring specifically for unreserved ratification, but Cummings said the intention was to make the language so plain that there would be no doubt that the party stood "behind the President."
